

FAC 330. Divisions

Currently, McPherson College faculty are organized into three academic divisions, each composed of a cluster of academic departments as follows:

Division of Humanities

Art

Modern Languages

Performing Arts

Philosophy and Religion

Division of Science and Technology

Mathematics

Natural Science

Technology

Division of Social Sciences

Business

Curriculum and Instruction

History and Politics

Health, Physical Education, and Recreation

Behavioral Science

As a rule, divisions meet twice each month. Divisions assume the initial responsibility for reviewing and approving curriculum changes proposed by departments. Division meetings also serve as the principal vehicle through which faculty learn about curriculum and program changes adopted by Educational Policies Committee and/or Faculty Meeting and through which faculty review and evaluate such changes.
